MISCELLANEOUS READING. SELECTED.

TIME'S CHANGES. I saw her once-so freshly fair. That, like a blossom just unfolding, She opened to life's cloudless air, And nature joyed to view its moulding

Her smile, it haunts my memory yet,

Her rosebud mouth, her eyes of jet, Around on all their light bestowing, Oh! who could look on such a form, So nobly free, so softly tender,

Her cheeks' fine hue divinely glowing

And darkly dream that earthly storm Should dim such sweet, delicious splendor For in her mien, and in her face.

And in her young step's fairy lightness Naught could the raptured gazer trace But beauty's glow, and pleasure's brightness

I saw her twice-an altered charm, But still of magic, richest, rarest, Than girlhood's talisman less warm,

Though yet of earthly sights the fairest

Upon her lap she held a child, The very image of his mother. Which ever to her smiling smiled, They seemed to live but in each other.

But matron cares, or lurking woe, Her thoughtless, sinless look had banish d And from her cheek the roseate glow Of girlhood's balmy morn had vanish'd

Within her eyes, upon her brow, Lay something softer, tonder, deeper, As if in dreams some vision'd woe, Had broke the Elysium of the sleepe I saw her thrice-Heaven's dark decree,

In widow's garments had arrayed her Yet beautiful she seemed to be, As e'en my reveries had portrayed her; The glow, the glance, had passed away,

The sunshine, and the sparkling glitter, Still, though I noted pale decay, The retrospect was scarcely bitter For in their place, a calmness dwelt, Serene, subduing, soothing, holy;

In feeling which, the bosom felt

That every louder mirth is folly: A passiveness, which is not grief, A stillness, as of sunset streaming; A fairy glow on flower and leaf, Till earth looks like a landscape dreaming.

A last time, and unmoved she lay, Beyond life's dim, uncertain river, A glorious mould of fading clay, From whence the spark had fled forever! I gazed-my heart was like to burst, And as I thought of years departed,

The years wherein I saw her first,

When she, a girl, was tender-hearted: And, when I mused on later days, As moved she in her matron duty, A happy mother, in the blaze Of ripened hope, and sunny beauty; I felt the chill, I turned aside,

Bleak desolation's cloud came o'er me, And Being seemed a troubled tide, Whose wrecks in darkness swam before me Turn we to yonder clime of cloudless light,

Where the redeemed their crowns of glory Their palms of victory, their robes of white, And know she lives with Christ forever there; Know that she is a jewel in His crown,

Know that the songs of triumph louder swell Then let us lay each selfish murmur down, Then, let the grieved heart answer, "It is Well." ROVER & BAKER'S NEW AND ELE-T GANT FAMILY SEWING
